We're pleased to present the 2019/20 Words Anthology, "Waves of Words." Unique to Burnaby Schools, the Words Writing Project has annually showcased the best in student poetry and prose since 1985.

In the Spring of 2020, as this year's anthology is sent to the printing press, across the country and around the world learning looks different because of COVID-19. Reading and writing remains essential to education, as it fosters creative thinking, inquiry, reflection, an appreciation for the written word, and a connection to the world beyond our own experience.

This anthology of original work – collected before COVID-19 impacted how we live, teach and learn – is both a celebration of student writing and a chance to explore the opportunity to become a published author.

Congratulations to the more than 100 students whose writing was selected for publication. All students from Kindergarten through Grade 12 had the opportunity to submit in either English or French. We are proud of all of their work. One should never underestimate the power of waves of words.
